D
I am a little bear
      G
so cute with fuzzy hair
D                              A
once upon a time I was so nice
          D                        D7
now Im loved and hugged no more
          B                      A#
and Im stuck here at this store
        D             A              D          G       D
and nine ninety nine is my new price

I used to hang around
      G
all glossy black and brown
        D                              A
in a high rise apartment oh so fancy
         D                 D7
but I lost my button eye
          B                A#
and began to slowly die
        D              A                              D      G       D
and now its up to you to bring me mercy

this little soul of mine
    G
is nine ninety nine
      D                                                A
and if youve got some thread then you can fix me
      D              D7
Im torn old and pale
      B          A#
and I am for sale
D                  A                  D           G      D
what I need is for someone to pick me

         D
I was put out with the trash
           G
with the fireplace ash
D                                A
torn dirty and clean out of luck
           D                    D7
but the garbage men were kind
            B               A#
and they sewed up my behind
       D               A              D               G       D
and put me on the grill of their truck

I lived there for a year (one solid year)
       G
and shed so many tears (so many tears)
      D                                A
till one day I fell underneath the tires (I fell underneath the tires)
            D            D7
now the only single way
         G/B             A#no5
Ill go home with you today
             D                A                                D       G       D
is if your desperate for a doll thats sick and tired

but thats just what you did
         G
you saved me little kid
        D                                A
you saw that I had stories left to tell
               D                       D7
now your mom is getting used to a
B                    A#
although she is confused by a
D                  A          D         G       D
slightly stinky old bear smell
